SOIL

Campania is one of Italy's oldest wine growing regions. Home to the extremely rare varieties of Falanghina and Aglianico, the distinctive climate and the volcanic soils are explicitly reflected in these excellent iconic wines from La Guardiense winery. The grapes for this Falanghina are exclusively grown on the slopes of the municipalities of Guardia Sanframondi, San Lorenzo Maggiore, San Lupo and Castelvenere. The predominant loamy lime soils that form the slopes underlying the vineyards make for wines with a nose of great aromatic finesse and a remarkable elegance on the palate.

TASTING NOTES AND FOOD PAIRINGS

Golden yellow color. Fruity, toasty aromas and flavors of nectarine and apple tarts, toasted meringue, and nougat with a silky, bright, dry-yet-fruity medium body and a smooth, appealing, medium-long mango and pineapple, nutskin, and nutskin finish with fine, dusty, fruit tannins and a suggestion of oak. A ripe, vivacious, lightly toasty Italian white that will appeal to Chardonnay drinkers.
